As Director of Client Solutions at For Purpose Law Group, Cameron Harris is often the first friendly face (or voice) new clients meet—and he’s on a mission to make that first impression count. Based in FPLG’s Laramie office, Cameron connects purpose-driven leaders with the legal support they need, helping them navigate the firm’s services with clarity, empathy, and confidence.

Cameron brings a background rich in client service, sales, and relationship-building. Before joining FPLG in 2019, he honed his communication skills in the most hands-on way possible: starting as a carpet cleaner and rising to become a top performer in sales and service. From there, he worked in the automotive industry, earning accolades for outstanding customer care and developing a keen sense for listening deeply and solving problems quickly.

At FPLG, Cameron’s focus is making sure every potential client feels seen, heard, and supported. Whether he’s answering a first inquiry or guiding someone through our intake process, his approach is thoughtful, responsive, and always grounded in our firm’s mission to serve changemakers.

When he’s not leveling up the client experience, you’ll find Cameron camping in the mountains, tearing through a new book (or five), mountain biking, fishing, or enjoying life with his wife and their two rescue pups.
