Carol Sonnenberg is the Managing Director of For Purpose Accounting and a CPA who brings deep nonprofit financial expertise to the leaders we serve—accounting, tax-minded compliance, and CFO-level strategy included. She helps organizations get out of the weeds and into a financial rhythm that actually supports the mission: clean books, clear reporting, and systems that don't fall apart the moment things get busy.

Carol is especially known for building efficient, modern (web-based) accounting systems and delivering meaningful financial reports that leaders can use to make real decisions (not just file things away). She also provides fractional CFO support, partnering closely with decision-makers from start-up phase through established operations—tightening processes, strengthening financial operations, and bringing more clarity to the day-to-day.

She's also deeply values-driven in her work, with a long-standing commitment to community impact, including advocacy for youth programs and individuals with disabilities.

When she's not helping clients get confident about their finances, Carol is happiest in the mountains—especially if she's there with a horse and a trail ahead.
